The bark Timbro is in Calais harbor full of water and will be unloaded for further examination according to the survey. The cargo of Rum & Co., Quebec, under-writers, are at Calais. They have ordered the Timbro towed to St. John.

FROM HEADQUARTERS.

Arrests on Charges of Perjury.

CHARLESTON, Jan. 31. Detective W. N. McNamara, who was instrumental in the arrest of "Jack" Darling and other violators of the gaming laws, was arrested today together with his bondsman, John McNamara, under a warrant charging them with perjury in November. E. L. Seymour, ex-dog in Township No. 10, was convicted of selling decks in violation of the game laws upon the testimony of the McNamaras and fined $100 and costs. Seymour charges them with testifying falsely. They will be tried at Ellsworth tomorrow.

DEATH IN LOUISVILLE.

Of a Prominent Citizen.

CAMDEN, Jan. 31. George W. Young, of Lincolnville, died yesterday of heart disease, aged fifty-two years. He was First Selectman, a member of the State Legislature and a Grand Army man. He was one of the sons of the late Moses Young, of Lincolnville. He leaves a widow but no children. He was considerably interested in Lincolnville and Camden real estate.

A HAYTIEN ELECTION.

Timely Precautions Taken to Ensure Peace.

Soldiers and Gatling Guns Ready to Quell a Riot.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. Advices from Port au Prince, dated at the 16th say that everything is quiet in Hayti and business is steadily, thanks to the precautions taken by the government. During the first days of the election, the 15th to the 18th, the troops in Port au Prince were kept under arms. Large bodies of soldiers lined the streets about the city and an immense and unnecessary display of force was made. Gatling guns were placed in position at the corners of the streets, and were taken to the polling places to immediately suppress all who dared to create disturbances and the strength and energy of the authorities have done so far all that could have been desired. It is said that all the troops will be withdrawn to their quarters in a few days.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Young Lady Killed by a Brute

Who Immediately Suicided.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Jan. 30. Last evening Leander Anderson shot and killed Alma Carlson and immediately suicided by shooting himself. Anderson was about twenty-six years of age and the girl about nineteen. He had persecuted her with his attentions for some months.

FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

Favorable Report on the Bogus Bill in Mississippi.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 31. The meeting of yesterday presided by Gen. A. M. West in the House of Representatives adopting the report by Congress of the Mississippi election bill, was called to order this morning. A majority report recommends that the bill do not pass and also recommends the minority report made a special order for Feb. 4.

THE BANK WRECK.

The Accounts Now Being Examined.

New York, Jan. 31. The Lenox Hill Bank is now being examined and the result will be made known at an early date. The worst seems to be known that matters will be right. Both the New York National Bank Examiner, Newbury, is still at work at the office of the Lenox Hill National Bank and a statement is expected this morning. Chief Examiner Coffin is working on the books of the Manhattan Bank. Nothing can be given out until the examination is completed.

President Gleason of the Lenox National Bank called at Receiver Tyng Asbury today and ended a conference. He says it is not true that he was in any way connected with the failure of the Lenox Hill Bank. It is not true that he ever drew any money from the bank, except his salary as president, and that was paid him by check. He says he has no statement to make at present.

THE NEWS.

A Gas Asphyxiation of Prosecutor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. The Herald publishes the following from Quebec, dated Wednesday night: Last night Mr. Thibaudeau, Arthur Taschereau, Q. A Visit to Spain.

[Special Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

Gallegan, Spain, Jan. 18, 1890.

The gentleman for the inside man which we hinted in the empty storehouse of the stealth of haggardly Finisterre, served to give that extraordinary functionary of the Spanish government a short lease upon her. He first commenced to punish Pierre Fingnin and exploit to put some necessary clothing upon his attenuated form. He never forgave her one moment, however, for [illegible] relations to me. MONDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1890.

The House Contest.

The action of the Democrats in the House the past week, together with the decision of the Democratic caucus to resort by every possible device to prevent the transaction of public business, furnish a lesson that will not be lost upon the people. The first duty of the House is to decide who are its legally elected members. This duty the majority undertook to perform when the Democratic minority interposed its objection and attempted to control the action of the House. The contest, therefore, has been to determine whether the majority or minority is to rule. The theory that members can participate in the action of the House in the most active and offensive manner and then claim that they are absent by reason of declining to vote on a matter duly thereafter laid before the House, is one that the people of the country will gladly see wiped out. The rule or rule policy of the Democrats will not be sustained by the intelligent masses. The abnormal weakness of their position has been demonstrated by the disgraceful methods they have adopted. Bluster and vituperation have taken the place of calm and logical argument on the Democratic side. The contrast in this respect has been most marked. Through all the struggle the Speaker and the Republican members have maintained a dignified demeanor that has strengthened their position very materially. They are contending for majority rule and the people will sustain them. The majority is accountable for the legislation of the House. The Republicans will have to answer to the people for what ever they do in the transaction of public business. If they go wrong the people are abundantly competent to pass judgment. They should be no need of the services of the loud mouthed obstructionists who have delayed business for several days without accomplishing anything. Some of the very men who are now talking the loudest about constitutional rights were but a few years ago in arms against the Union. Behind the present spirit manifested by the men who are trying to usurp the constitutional functions of the majority smolds strongly of the struggle that characterized the debates in Congress at the outbreak of the rebellion. It is a spirit that will result in Republican majority in the next Congress.

A Terrible Affliction.

The household of Secretary Blaine has again been stricken by affliction in the death of Mrs. Coppinger, the eldest daughter. Following so closely the sudden death of the eldest son, Mr. Walker Blaine, the blow falls with terrible severity upon the bereaved family on which the most heartfelt sympathy will go out from the people of this and other States. Mrs. Coppinger was the wife of Col. J. J. Coppinger and leaves two sons, aged six and four years respectively.

The Traffic Ought to be Suppressed.

The "trust" movement upon the bad effects on the neighboring towns of the saloon traffic in that city, receives very general commendation. The saloon traffic ought to go. It is a curse to the city as well as the entire surrounding country. Even the opponents of the present law have to admit that the traffic should be restricted, as it is one of which no good can be said, but they argue in favor of a high license. That, however, is a question of the future. When the people want the law changed they will indicate it. The question now is what shall we do today. This is a matter that interests all our citizens and we believe they should place themselves squarely on the side of law and order. If a class of men were engaged in persistently violating any other law they would be punished. Why should the saloon keepers, who are doing very sad work in our city, be exempt?

The Majority Must Rule.

[Philadelphia Press.

Said ex-Speaker Carlisle, in protesting against Speaker Reed's energetic enforcement of the Constitution: "For over one hundred years the people had been secure that not less that a majority elected could pass laws binding upon them." This is not true. The people read the plain words of the Constitution that "a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum to do business." For Congress to "do business" is to pass laws by a vote of a majority of those present.

If there was any room for doubt people would prefer Justice Story's authority to Mr. Carlisle's. In discussing the question in his lucid commentaries he observes: "It was said that in the Congress of the United States more than a majority of a quorum should be necessary for a decision. Traces of this opinion, though very obscure, may perhaps be found in the convention itself. To require such an extraordinary quorum for the decision of questions would be in effect to give the rule to the minority, instead of the majority, and thus to subvert the fundamental principle of a Republican government."

A majority of a quorum is not only sufficient to do business under the Constitution, but that instrument provides the very means to give effect to this provision. It expressly empowers a less number than a quorum "to compel the attendance of absent members." But what virtue is there in this power if, when the absent members are brought into the House, they can still prevent a quorum by doing nothing?

It is Mr. Carlisle's position and that of his associates that is revolutionary. Its direct effect is to nullify the Constitution by making the quorum subscribed by that instrument to do business powerless. With the Constitution, common sense and common right on his side Speaker Reed should be able to maintain the stand he has taken, in spite of the tumultuous opposition of the Democrats, and he will maintain it if all the Republicans have spirit enough to stand with him to the end and stand firm.

[New York Tribune.]

The root of the matter is that the majority of the House has a right to transact business. The people will sustain whatever measures may be shown to be necessary to that end. Hence the greatest service that the Democrats could render to the Republican party they are now rendering, in the demonstration of their own purpose to rule unless they can rule, to block the wheels of legislation unless a minority can dictate what measures shall be considered. The persistent course in [illegible] the will of the people, as expressed in the last Congressional elections.

[Boston Journal.]

The decision that if a quorum of members of the House are present, no matter whether or not a portion of them refrain from voting the House shall be considered competent to go on with business, not only has the support Democrats and other precedents in its favor, but is in accordance with the simple rules of common sense. Boston [illegible] [illegible] against [illegible] this decision, besides plain people of the Nation, without regard to party, will say Amen to it. Majority rule is one of the principles which lies at the foundation of our American republic. It is a principle which cannot be safely disregarded and the little clique of reckless Democratic politicians who demand that whenever the whim seizes them they shall be permitted to block the wheels of public business grievously misjudge the temper of people for opinion. The vile and tendentious men who have followed the minority in its illegal course of hearing themselves talk and of reading their duly confirmed in print may do of the vital interests of the Democratic party. No party in this country can afford to continue in an attitude of [illegible] obstruction and obstruction. Yet, thanks to the Texas, Georgia and Mississippi, that is where the Democratic party is standing. A mule does not drink champagne on the theory that it is being outraged and prestige every hour that it clings to such a [illegible].

[Boston Herald.]

The Republican majority of the House of Representatives made no mistake in their selection as Speaker. The country [illegible] of Congress needed legislation, and we hold the Republican party responsible for such legislation. The policy of the Democratic minority, from the day Congress met till the present, has been one of obstruction. That minority is led by able and, at the same time, desperate men. They do not intend that the majority shall gain credit for accomplishing results. They wish the 51st Congress to be a do-nothing Congress. Speaker Reed has planted himself upon the principle of majority rule. He may be—he will be—denounced by the Southern filibusters, but the people will sustain him.

[Indianapolis Journal.]

The majority must rule or our system constitutes a despotism. The rights of the minority and the rights of the only are identical save to a single particular—control. Because for a decade the tail has wagged the dog in the House, it by no means follows that such a revolutionary proceeding is to go on for ever. Now that the House is organized for business, with brains and experience in the fore, it is time for the dog to wag the tail. As the tail is of the tail, the majority refuses to so consent a resolution. But if the organ has any backbone to it, it will have to take a second look, or wagging. The tail wagged half for years, and now the dog will do the wagging. Nor is [illegible] with him very [illegible] but we conclude that he will have to so down the wagging. He will find Mr. Reed hard to beat against.

[Democratic Minneapolis.

[With Due Allowance.]

Ruby to cold, indeed, that Friday's exhibition was over. It was incomparable and stilled there way that proceedings Mr. Reed had already agreed quietly had in the way of [illegible]; that it exhibited for Mr. Byron this afternoon splendor, as the speaker's ruling by "arbitrary, contemptuous and despotic," delivered in a spirit of [illegible] and made effective by the voice of a "mule." Mr. Byron also quoted in a heated harangue on just methods for the party in power. Colquitt, the Democratic Federal orator, used all, corrupt and oppressive, and for himself, he was about making preparations to die in the last ditch of Liberty.

"The gentleman has [illegible] every department of the Government as tyrannical," exclaimed Mr. Mutchler, "and it is about time for him to secede."

This rally caused a laugh, and [illegible] fared sadly with the effort of the Indiana statesman's apostrophe to Bleeding Freedom, and the advertisement of his intention to defend the imperilled goddess to the extremity, "to buckle the last blade of grass and to die in the last ditch."

Scratched 28 Years

Body covered with rashes. Nothing terrible. Suffering endless. No relief. Doctors and medicines failed. Speedily cured by Cuticura at a cost of $5.

Cured by Cuticura

If I had known of the CUTICURA Remedies twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me many sleepless nights and hundreds of dollars in money. I was troubled with an itching humor for twenty-eight years. At times it was so severe that I could not rest day or night. I tried the best doctors and best medicines, but found no relief. I was induced to try the CUTICURA Remedies, and one set entirely cured me. I have not been troubled with the humor for two years. I am now sixty-two years of age, and CUTICURA is the only medicine that ever did me any good. I cannot say enough in favor of the CUTICURA Remedies. I feel like a new man. I am perfectly willing that you should use my name as a reference. I have given your CUTICURA Remedies to many of my friends, and they all speak highly of them.

For the last six months of 1889, it is said that 2,000 cars of freight were shipped from the three stations of Northern Aroostook, and cleared from the port of Port Fairfield.

An Aroostook exchange relates the following: On the down train, a few days ago, was a newly married man and his young bride, having just started on their bridal tour. In the same car was a prudential joker from the same town, who, when the deputy collector of customs at Aroostook Junction came into the car, called him over to his seat and said: "I despise an informer, but I am a personal friend of yours, and I feel it to be my duty to inform you that that man (pointing to the happy looking young man who had just played himself in matrimonial harness) is making an attempt to smuggle 200 pounds of American merchandise into New Brunswick. The officer went to the young man and questioned him on the situation, with the result that the groom was held responsible. The husband followed the officer to the smoking car fairly gasping for breath, when he thought of overhearing the dearly familiar salutation in his wife's tones. The joker had followed them into the "smoker," and then called the officer and said: "Old fellow you'd better go back to inform your of the fact that he is investigated." The officer looked astonished and said: "Eh, the groom is going to take a live Canadian into New Brunswick?" He then told the officer that the young man had just been married in Caribou and that the 200 pounds of merchandise was his wife. A hearty laugh followed the explanation, and the young man returned to his wife with a happier heart at once.

Penobscot.

Under the lead of Rev. W. F. Parker, who is now preaching in the town for the benefit of the people, the Congregational church at Bradley has raised $1,200 for church use and "mortgage raising" during the past year.

Hancock.

Any one who has wondered as to an appropriate epitaph for an ugly dame, might have something by accompanying Rev. S. E. Dunbar on Mackerelville's visit to Elizabeth Ascension says he divides his time equally between Town's Island and God's Island, crossing the bay, a distance of seven miles, twice each day, in an open boat in all weathers. He gladly fills appointments in all parts of the town. He celebrates five services beside the Sunday school each week, attended to his pastoral duties, and yet finds much time for study. As might be expected he has good success and eleven new members have been added to the church at Seven Islands since September.

Lincoln.

F. D. Haley is adding a 7,000-ton building to his bottom factory South Gardiner. The Kennebec Company are enlarging their planing mill. Messrs. Reynolds and F. H. Masterman building thereon of 15,000 feet capacity, replacing the plant A Clapp is interested. Gardiner's Prize, which they will fill as soon as the frames are ready, says the Gardiner Journal.

The City Council of Augusta, has authorized the Mayor and Treasurer to issue bonds, in such time and terms as they may deem expedient, to fund the city debt as shall mature during the current municipal year, said bonds being for the purpose of renewing loans of the city existing prior to Jan. 1, 1872, and redeemable of the same.

Avon.

An interesting case comes from Tenant's Harbor. James Rounsley, a school teacher there, chastised one of his pupils for disobedience. One evening, on his way from school, the boy's parents attacked him. Boughey succeeded in defending himself, getting the best of the affray, and then had the angry parents brought before Trial Justice Nelson Hall, who fined them $3 and costs each, amounting to $19 47.

The Warren & Thomaston Electric Light and Power Company seriously discuss the feasibility of locating an electric plant on the old powder mill water privilege in the town of Warren, and taking there their power for operating a light and power system. The water privilege is a very excellent one, and the company, if it locates there, will expect to furnish motive power for the numerous manufactories in Thomaston and Warren, while an electric railroad from Thomaston to Rockland is a future possibility.

Piscataquis.

A firm of wholesale grocers in Portland are about to open a branch store in Foxcroft. Temporarily they will rent a building, but in the spring we understand it is their intention to erect a large ware-house.

Somerset.

It is now said that the report of the loss of the Douglass Dearborn, owned by Arthur Sewall, of Bath, is unauthentic, and the vessel is believed to be all right.

Washington.

Capt. L. S. McClintock, of Beechtree Harbor, died at his home Monday. He was a retired sea captain, having been engaged for years in the fruit carrying business; he was the "hero" commander of the schooner Baracoa, when she was seized by the Spanish and was to be confiscated but he boldly made sail under pretense of drying the same and taking advantage of a favorable wind slipped his challenger under the very noses of their gunboats, safely landing the old flag of freedom and goodly his own shores. He was elected by the Republican gun-boats into American waters. The schooner was finally released, but had he fallen into their hands he would doubtless have been confronted and shot. He leaves a widow and family well provided for. He was eleven sixty-one years of age.

The Machias Republican declares that there is every reason to believe that a coal deposit exists at Little River, a little north of Ferry. It has been demonstrated that in the immediate vicinity of the locality there is to be found every indication of a coal deposit.

Penobscot.

Ralph Chatterton, of Saco, has given up his candidacy at the Annapolis Naval Academy and returned home. He intends nothing to ailments.

W. A. Chatterton, gunmaker for the Remington Arms Company, Ilion, N. Y., has been granted a divorce from his wife, of a Bath that he obtained from this county two days ago. Sidney, when he was feeding the stock, he kicked over an old pan that had fallen, upside down, in the ground, and cut two his middle toes, which the nerve to stop and strength for her long term of solitary confinement. The best part of the day he spent in dissecting his toes, and never was more ready than he was of the best carpenter in his entire flock.

The school at North Saco, which has been almost entirely broken up with its pupils, reopened its sessions Tuesday, but with a very small attendance, there being many cases of whooping cough in that locality.

A government inspector from Boston has been making an official investigation of the charges recently preferred against Chief U. S. Hussey of the Hancock Point life-saving station. The charges were made by Albert Hancock, who resigned at the station last winter, but did not succeed in getting back with the crew there this season. All the members of the crew were examined by the inspector. The outcome of the investigation will probably not be known for several weeks.

From Mike.

A correspondent writes: Mr. Chas. H. Perrigo, for so many years known as the cook agent of Maine, died at his step's, J. I. Perrigo's, in Mile, Thursday afternoon at three o'clock, after five days sickness of pneumonia. He was born in the town of Hartwood, Waldo County, in the year 1818. He was married in Mile, to Sibbie Hodgdon, May 31, 1845, and they have reared three sons since, his wife having passed away four months ago. He now leaves two sons and one daughter, out of a family of six children. For over seventy years he has been associated with the name of S. S. Scranton & Co., Hartford, Conn., for whom he has sold hundreds of books in every town and county of Maine, as well as parts of the Provinces, this fact being one of the first to send a letter of sympathy to the children now left to mourn his loss. In former years we made and sold C. H. Perrigo's family medicines for which orders came in monthly from different parts of the world. Mr. Perrigo began to fail after the death of his wife and passed away as he lived, an honest and upright man, striving through life to live for his children and doing all he could for their comfort. Money and many hard drives seemed nothing to him if it was to serve a friend, or one in need, and many will bathe and hearts when they learn of the loss of their old and true friend, C. H. Perrigo.
